III. REASONS FOR CHANGES IN THE RESULTS

1. During the reporting period, against the backdrop of a complex global economic environment, the Company continued to focus on its main business and accelerated its market expansion, achieving relatively rapid growth in operating income. In terms of its Active Pharmaceutical Ingredient (API) business segment, the Company maintained its leading position in the market and continued to strengthen the support for its fast-growing finished dose pharmaceutical products business while meeting the demand of API customers' orders, which provided solid protection for the Company's heparin chain. In terms of its finished dose pharmaceutical products business segment, the Company's sales of finished dose enoxaparin sodium pharmaceutical products performed well globally, with rise in both sales revenue and market share, further solidifying the Company's strategy of transforming into a high-end finished dose pharmaceutical products industry. In terms of its Contract Development and Manufacturing Organization (CDMO) business segment, the Company not only stepped up efforts to obtain new orders, but also endeavoured to adjust the product structure and improve the overall efficiency, which resulted in an increase in both the operating income and profit of the Company's CDMO business in 2022.
2. During the reporting period, benefitting from the Company's proactive implementation and execution of global supply chain management strategy and operational efficiency enhancement strategy, the Company's profitability continued to improve. On the one hand, the orderly price adjustment of raw materials for heparin, coupled with the Company's proactive implementation of its global supply chain management strategy for raw materials, reduced the impact of price fluctuations of raw materials on the gross profit margin of the Company's heparin industry chain, and the gross profit margin of the heparin industry chain gradually rebounded. On the other hand, the Company actively adjusted its financial structure, strengthened cost control, optimized asset allocation with enhancement in both corporate financial and management strategies, thereby continuously improving operational efficiency.
